ARMY AVIATORS TO RESUME PLYING

Work Was Postponed on Account of Deaths of Lieut. Rockwell and Corporal Scott.

Flights by the army aviators will be resumed to-morrow, both at College. Plark and the hydro station at the War College. Flights were postponed all of ans week, out of respect of Leavt. Rockwell and Corporal Scott, who were kill-of them to join the aviation school, to man the machines resently ordered by the government. Testerday afternoon at College Park, Harry Kantner, of the Moissant Company, made three sheet flights of about eight minutes each. These flights were a good test of the stability of the monoplane, for Kantner flew into a twenty-mile wind.

Miss Hernetta A. Miller, the only it-censed woman filer in America, alse made a flight in the Moissant monoplane. Miss-Miller's control of the machine in the wind was admirable. Sile won the applause of the army aviators by the banks she made on turns, and drew a complifying aviators of the army school, when she made a perfect landing under unfavorsable conditions.

Hugh Robinson, of the Curits Company, is at the War College installing a self-starter on the motor of the Curits hydroplane. This device will enable the operator to start his earnine again in case it should go dead on him in the sir.

Services Will Be Held in Building To-day.

The new edifice of First Church of Christ, Scientist, just completed at the southeast corner of Euclid and Champian Road, is a distinct addition to the church architecture of the city. Designed by the architects, Mesars, Marsh and Peter, with whom was associated E. Dwight Ryerson, in the classic style, the building, which has an area of W by 113 feet and set back about thirty feet from the front for the approach terrace and steps, is of fresproof construction, the materials for the exterior being gray conyon sandstone for the entrance portice and base of the building, in combination with gray terra cotta and specially made cream-gray facing bricks, 2 by 13 linches in size, isaid in Flemish bond with wide recessed joints. The roof is covered with Greek pattern unglaxed tiles in a soft shade of green. A system of double giazing was adopted for the church with with the street traffic close the addevalk of Euclid Street, approached by wide granite steps, paved terrace and entrance green for the church with the steps in the addevalk of Euclid Street, approached by wide granite steps, paved terrace and entrance green for the church with the case of the building, in conducted to the surface and the steps of the delevalk for the church rooms in the basement.
